His whole dominion was but a district on the western slope of the largest of the isses, and he, had be been left unmolested by all around him, might have fived and died as simply King of Kona. But such was not the ordering of events, for like a certain island king of earlier date, he was ere long assailed by neighboring hostile powers and challenged to a contest for his kingdom and his life. Though not courting the collision, he bravely met the issue, and such was the manner of his warfare that the whole island quickly yield-ed to his arms and acknowledged him as its master. The adjoining isles soon fol-lowed in its wake, and yet another, leaving but two independent of his sceptre; and they had but short breathing time for their national life, for within a generation from the time that found him the ruler of a petty district, there was not a foot of soil that was not subject to his sway as govereign of the group. Fitly was be named KARESTANESIA, or the "Lonely One," not only as exalted far above all the Chie's and Commons of the land, but also as the Far out upon the bosom of the broad Pacific, lie a group of Tropical Islands, near a dozen in number. Of these, eight are recognized as constituents of that island kingdom. Various the theories formed to account for their formation and appearance. Upbeaval, and depression, cormer and Winter. Their population, once comparatively dense, is now scarce a remand of its former self. But though a feeble folk among the nations of the earth, they nevertheless, possess all the elements of Christian civilination, and in the acquisition of the arts of reading and writing, thereby challenge competition with the foremost countries of the globe.

The habits and amenities, and all the charm of social life, do there exist, and found a happy illustration of the same in the visit of Queen Emma to Europe and America. The mixture is now more or less explosive; and when, spon the next evening, the lamp is lighted without replenishing with oil, as is often done, an explosion is liable to take place. Late in the evening, when the oil is nearly consumed, and the space above is filled with vapor, the lamp cannot explode so long as it remains at rest upon the table. Such is the present aspect of the Islands. Such is the present aspect of the Islands of the vapor is consecution. sion came to the writer's knowledge a few strtuent isles, marked out their bounds years since which was occasioned by taking a lamp from the table to answer a ring of the door-bell. If the lamp had been full of fluid this accident could not have occurred. Before carrying it to the door, flame might have been thrust into the lamp with safety; the vapor would have been ignited, but no explosion would have taken pance.—Journal of Chemistry, Boston. SHE OF THE STONES OF THE PTRANSDS.-I dare say very many will differ from me in opinion, and say hard things in reference to my lack of taste and want of appreciation of the so-called wonderful, but I am bold to confess that my first impression on reaching the pyramids of Sakkara was one of disciprointment. From what I was one of disappointment. From what I had read, and from all I had heard tourists relate from time to time regarding the wonderful size of the blocks of stone composing these great structures, I was led to imagine that the individual blocks of stone were so large that, it became a difficult matter to form any clear conception as to the manner in which they were piled one upon another. TREBURAPHENG.—One day last March, a dinner-party at the Buckingham Palace Hotel were entertained by an interchange of messages with President Johnson, Secretary Seward, the Governor of Cuba, and the Governor of Newfoundland. Wires had been brought into the dining-room for the occasion, and the return telegrams were received in from two hours twentyfive minutes to six minutes. But the San Francisco feat excels them all. To accomplish this, observes the Athenaum, the wires were "joined up" all across Ameri-ca, from Heart's Content to the great Cal-Valentia at 7.21 a. w. on the lat of February, the acknowledgment was received at 7.23; the San Francisco time then being 12.20 r. w. of January 31. The distance travelled by the message going and coming was about 14,000 miles.

In the memoir of Dr. Bethune, recently published, is the following anecdote: One published is the following anecdote: One evening the doctor was crossing by the Fulton Ferry. Upon entering the cabin he found all the seats occupied when a thick husky voice cried, "Dr. Bethune," Turning in its direction, he found a man standing, who said, "Doctor, take my seat; it is an honor to give such a man a sent; ever since I heard of that big church in New York trying to get you away by giving a call of $5,000, and you said you'd see 'em d-d first, I have had a great respect for you, and I think it an honor to give you a seat." It is needless to say that the well-meaning man was not in a condition to judge of the terms most appropriate for such an interview.

BEWARE OF BESZINE.-From the facility with which it removes grease spots from fabrics, this substance has come to be regarded almost as a household indispensa-ble. But few persons however, realize the explosive character of Benzine or the danexplosive character of Benzine or the dan-gers attending the careless handling of the liquid. Being one of the most volatile and inflammable products resulting from the distillation of petroleum, it vaporizes with great rapidity, so that the contents of a four-ounce vial, if overturned, would render the air of a moderate-sized room highly avalonity. The highly explosive. The greatest care should be exercised in handling this substance in proximity to fire, and it is important to remember that the vapor escaping from an ancorked bottle will cause a flume to leap over a space of several feet.-Scientific

We enter an inflamatory protest against the use of that word 'milch.' Why use it? Would you talk of the 'milch of human kindness?' Not very frequently. How would it sound to hear one speak of the 'milch of the cocoa nut?' It would cause the hearer to snicker louder than thunder. Then why talk about milch cows? Quit it."
